Societe Generale expands its private banking offering in Slovenia

SKB, the subsidiary of the Societe Generale group in Slovenia, is expanding its private banking offering for top-tier wealth management clients, supported by the expertise of Societe Generale Private Banking (SGPB).

Backed by the recognised know-how of SGPB, SKB is reinforcing its offering and its teams in order to provide wealth management clients with access to additional high added-value services and advice for the management, protection and transmission of their wealth.

SKB's in-depth knowledge of wealthy Slovenian clients' needs, combined with the expertise of an international private bank, will enable clients to benefit from a broader range of products, in particular with regard to wealth planning solutions and investment advisory services for both domestic and foreign investments, which are not yet widely available in the country. SKB's clients will be served by dedicated staff located in a private banking centre in Ljubljana.

Societe Generale thus aims to capitalise on its businesses to provide its Slovenian-resident clients with a complete, first-class range of tailor-made banking services, investment and financial advisory and wealth management know-how.

Initiated in 2010 with Komerční Banka in the Czech Republic and followed by Societe Generale's subsidiary in Morocco in 2013 and in Serbia in 2016, Slovenia represents a further step in Societe Generale's strategy to continue to develop partnerships between its private bank and its overseas retail banking network.
